Saar Rejects French Plan by Landslide Vote

New Crisis Seen As Population Favors Control by Germany

SAARBRUECKEN (UP)—A rabble-rousing former Nazi storm trooper proclaimed "victory for Germany" today in a landslide conquest at the polls reminiscent of the plebiscite that won the Saar for Hitler 20 years ago.

The Saar, by a vote of more than 2 to 1, rejected a French plan to give this coal and iron-rich territory a "European" statute. And in effect the outcome amounted to support for handing the Saar to Germany once again.

The result also was a blow to the European unity policy the United States has pushed in Europe since World War II.

The vote spelled a new crisis in the long-smoldering dispute between France and Germany over the territory snuggled between their borders. There was open dismay in Paris. In Bonn, West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer—who had supported the statute called an emergency cabinet meeting.

The referendum was a dramatic triumph for the pro-Germans led by Dr. Heinrich Schneider, a former Nazi officer who whipped German nationalism to a white-hot pitch. It was such a bitter defeat for pro-French Premier Johannes Hoffman that he resigned soon after midnight today when the results became known.

It was an immense turnout—96.72 of the Saar's 662,849 registered voters went to the polls.

The result was 423,434 votes of 67.71 per cent against the French and West German approved statute to Europeanize the Saar, and 201,973 or 32.29 per cent for the statute.

The vote does not change the status of the Saar but it was a resounding slap in the face for France which has run the 900-square-mile industrial territory since 1945 and bound its economy tightly to that of France.

It also was a stinging defeat for Adenauer who gave his backing to the defeated statute which would have put the Saar under the administration of the Western European Union nations pending the writing of a final German treaty.

Population of U. S. Increases To 162,409,000

WASHINGTON (UP)—The rapidly growing population of the United States spurred another 7 per cent increase between 1950 and 1954 to an unprecedented 162,409,000.

The Census Bureau reported Sunday that all but seven states shared in the increase. These states were Maine, Vermont, West Virginia, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

Gains by other states ranged from 1.1 per cent for Kentucky to 31 per cent for Nevada.

The Census Bureau said the nation's population rose from 150,697,361 on April 1, 1950, to about 162,409,000 on July 1, 1954.

As in earlier years, the Census Bureau estimates showed a mounting population shift toward the Far West.

Alaska led all states and territories in the rate of increase. After adjustments for the heavy influx of seasonal labor, it showed an amazing 62 per cent rise for the four years. As of July 1, 1954, the population of Alaska stood at an estimated 208,000.

On the average, the U. S. population increased 1.6 per cent a year during the four-year period.

Robert W. Burgess, Census Bureau director, said in a television interview that some experts are predicting a total U. S. population of 228,000,000 by 1975.

The seven states showing decreases for the 1950-1954 period lost citizens mostly because of migrations to other areas of the country. The Pacific Coast, particularly California, appeared to be the chief destination of the migrants.

INTERNATIONAL OFFICERS OF THE RETAIL CLERKS INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION are shown after they had received gifts from Guy Price of Harrisburg Local 896 following noon banquet at the 63rd semi-annual convention of District 1, held at the Harrisburg Township high school yesterday. Shown from left to right are William McGuire, Washington, D. C., assistant to the president; James A. Suffridge of Washington, D. C., international president; Mr. Price; and Fred A. International Officers Speak At Dist. Meeting Retail Clerks

Delegates from Springfield to Cairo yesterday attended the District 1 convention of the Retail Clerks International association at the Harrisburg high school, where they learned of the progress of the union from international officers and heard a banquet address in which the members were urged to go to the polls to fight for their rights.

International officers who spoke at the afternoon business session were James A. Suffridge of Washington, D. C., president; Fred A. Ammond of Chicago, vice president; and William McGuire of Washington, assistant to the president.

Banquet speaker was Paul Powell of Vienna, member of the state legislature from this district. Price received appointment.

At the afternoon session William A. Deatherage of East St. Louis Local 676 was re-elected president of District 1 and it was voted to hold the fall convention at Jacksonville.

The international officers who spoke to the delegates from 37 local unions told of the growth of the Retail Clerks International association, declaring it had jumped from the 14th largest union to the fifth largest in the American Federation of Labor during the past four years.

Also at this meeting Guy Price, financial secretary and business agent of the host local, 896, received an appointment by the visiting international president. Mr. Price was appointed adviser to the Retail Clerks committee of three which meets monthly with the Illinois Federation of Labor.

Rep. Powell, introduced by County Judge Traflet Dennis at the banquet, told of the crying need for individuals to participate in government at all levels.

He deplored general lack of interest by the populace in who is elected to office and gave statistics on the small number who exercise their privilege of voting and smaller numbers who show any interest at all in the campaigns. Then he said to the delegates:

"You people are promoting the cause of labor and are interested in making the country a better place in which to live. You should see that friends of labor are retained in office and that its enemies are defeated."

He urged the people to elect politicians who will serve conscientiously and honestly and to support those who support the cause of labor regardless of political party.

Powell attacked the Taft-Hartley law and said labor was partly to blame for not rising and putting men in the 80th Congress who would fight such a law. He also told of his efforts in Springfield to get a state minimum wage law and charged he was stymied by the opposite party.

Sees Shorter Work Week

Powell predicted that the four-day work week, longer vacations and earlier retirement age will come one day and declared he felt a study of them was necessary because of the continued growing use of machinery.

He advocated increased purchasing power for the low-income group and unemployment compensation for the disabled, ill and injured as well as for those out of work.

Following his address gifts were presented by Harrisburg Local 896 to President Suffridge, Vice President Ammond, Mr. McGuire, Sam Castellano of Murphysboro, general organizer in District 1, Jack Falk of Eldorado, secretary-treasurer of District 1, and to Mr. Price.

Louie Stricklin, president of Local 896, called the meeting to order at 11 a. m. and Judge Dennis spoke at the morning session. Mrs. Helen Asbel was in charge of the music for the event.

Elks Minstrel, Revue Wednesday And Thursday

The sixth annual Elks Minstrel, one of the top entertainment events of the year in the community, will be presented Wednesday and Thursday at the Grand theatre. Those who have seen the practice sessions say this year's show "What's Your Game?" will be the best.

The first part of the show is built around our national sports with Tim Turner, Charles D. Taylor and Bob Davis giving an outstanding dramatic presentation of "Strictly for the Birds." Bob Wilson will give you the lowdown on golf in his version of "Golfers Lament."

Minstrel interludes again this year will be Dr. H. J. Raley, with Bill Scribner, John R. Small, Johnny Towle and Buck Schriele in their familiar roles as end men. Bill Williams and Vern Joyner Jr. will sing in the minstrel part with Johnny Towle picking away on his banjo.

This year there will be an outstanding pit band composed of Mary Lou Sullivan, Gene Stinson of Marysville, John Ledbetter of Marion, Phil Olsson of Carbondale, Charley Martin, West Frankfort, Tommy Miller, Tommy Jenkins, Ray Asbel, Jerry Bramlet and Bill Bottomley from the IHTS.

Gene Schriele, general show chairman, says "it is worth the price of admission just to hear this band."

A dress rehearsal of the show will be given Wednesday at 2:30 at the Grand theatre with the grade school students from the fifth grade up as guests of the Elks club.

Other accidents included: Frank Lavender, 19, Hurst, was killed when his car overturned on Ill. 149 near Bush Friday night.

In non-traffic accidents, Oscar Meserole, 37, was killed Saturday night when hit by a train while walking across the tracks near his Atlantic Trailer home.

W. Lee Woodruff, 50, Jacksonville, was killed when his gun went off accidentally while he was squirrel hunting Sunday.

Rep. Paul Powell

Paul Powell to Seek Re-Election To Legislature

Representative Paul Powell (D), Vienna, announced today he will seek renomination and re-election in 1956. Powell's announcement was made after several Democratic county organizations and individuals have endorsed him and recommended that he seek State office.

Powell said, "I believe it is appropriate for me to let it be known at this time that my desire is to continue as a member of the General Assembly, where with my experience and seniority I have found full opportunity to serve the people who have honored me over many years by retaining me in this office. I am proud of the record I have made since I was elected in 1954, and my campaign for re-election will be based on this record."

Powell stated that after being elected to the General Assembly in 1954 he set his course to be Speaker of the House. He achieved that ambition in 1949.

He has been Minority Whip, Minority Leader, and Speaker, and was voted the outstanding legislator by the members of the press in the 1951 and 1955 sessions. He has been a member of the all-important Budgetary Commission since 1945.

He was director of Downstate Democratic Organization from 1945 to 1952, during which time he was instrumental in bringing President Harry Truman into Illinois during the 1948 election. Many feel that it was through Rep. Powell's efforts that President Truman carried Illinois.

Because of the experience and seniority of Rep. Powell he has been appointed to many important committees. Commenting on reports that he has been urged to seek State office, Powell said his desire is only to continue to serve as a Representative of his constituents in the new 59th Representative district, comprised of Saline, Hamilton, Pope, Johnson, Massac, Gallatin, Hardin and Williamson counties.

Extinguish Blaze

The Harrisburg fire department yesterday entered Skags Electric Co. at Locust and Vine and extinguished a blaze before it could make serious headway. The fire was seen through a window by a woman who was passing by and she summoned the firemen. Entrance was made by kicking out a door glass. The blaze was caused by a short in an antenna rotator control.

Navy Reveals 4 Killed in Tests Of Grounded Jets

House Committee Opens Hearing on Controversial Planes

WASHINGTON (UP)—Four test pilots died in 11 crashes of the Navy's controversial Demon jet fighter, House members were told today. The planes later were grounded.

Earl J. Morgan, staff investigator for a government operations subcommittee on Navy plane buying, said the Navy blamed six of the crashes on engine failure and three on failure of the plane itself. Two could not be attributed to either cause alone, he said.

The subcommittee which opened hearings today, wants to know why the Navy continued to accept the planes after finding them unsuitable for flight. The Navy first learned of the plane's troubles after taking delivery of the first models in December, 1953. But it continued to accept them until June of this year.

Morgan said three of the pilots killed in testing the new plane were employees of the McDonnell Aircraft Corp., builders of the jet. The fourth was a Navy pilot. He said 7 of the 11 crashes were listed by the Navy as major and the other four as of a "lesser degree" of seriousness.

He said McDonnell test pilots believed the J40 engines built for the planes by Westinghouse Electric Corp. were "unreliable and under-powered" for the weight of the plane. He said he was told by McDonnell's chief test pilot, Robert C. Little, that if the plane had not finally been grounded McDonnell pilots would have refused to make further flights in it.

All told the Navy bought 168 of the J40 engines, in a number of varying forms.

Four Families Decide to 'Stick to the Last' as Crater Threatens Homes

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (UP)—Four determined families today decided to "stick to the last" despite a yawning crater which threatened to swallow their homes.

The huge crater, stretching 100 feet in diameter and 100 feet deep, to within 30 yards of a house occupied by William Chernosky and his family.

The Chernoskys and three other families, including 13 children, said they would wait until mine inspectors looked at the rumbling cave-in which is endangering their homes in nearby Forresterville. A slight earth tremor Friday signaled the crater's birth. Chernosky, who lives in the house with his mother, brother and aunt, noticed a small hole and warned away a group of children playing near it before spreading the alarm.

The hole quickly grew to its present dangerous proportions. The cave-in appeared to have halted movements and the falling and sifting of tons of dirt could still be heard from the crater.

Fire Chief J. Stewart Rowlands, who said the cave-in could sink as deep as 800 feet, believed the crater is following the lines of an abandoned anthracite vein, which had been worked about 25 years ago by the now defunct Lytle Coal Co. He estimated the vein was about 50 feet thick.

Rowlands said mine inspectors would look at the cave-in today to determine if it endangers miners working in other mines in the area.

Two Senate Farm Leaders Favor High Price Supports Only for Top Quality Crops

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UP)—Two Senate farm leaders agreed today that high farm price supports can be restored, but only for top quality crops.

Chairman Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee and Sen. Milton R. Young (R-ND), second-ranking Republican member of the committee, took identical stands as the committee met here today to open a cross-country series of 18 hearings on the politically-hot farm support issue.

They suggested a program under which government props for high-quality storable crops could "flex" from 90 to perhaps 95 per cent of the "fair income" parity level, with supports for lower grade crops fixed much lower—below 75 per cent of parity.

Both senators predicted President Eisenhower would sign such a farm bill.

Young Praises Plan

Young said it "would get the Republicans off the hook" in the 1956 battle for farm votes. Democratic Party leaders have seized on recent declines in farm prices as a prime issue for the 1956 campaign.

A "quality" support plan "would go a long way to stabilize farm income," which has dropped 11 per cent since 1952, according to Agriculture Department records, Young said.

"Unless we take action immediately we will be in serious trouble," he added.

Ellender said he expected many farmer witnesses at the hearing to urge a return to the rigid price prop system in effect for more than a decade until last January. Rigid Supports Replaced

Under this plan, which was replaced by the Eisenhower administration's flexible support program, the government guaranteed 90 per cent of parity supports for virtually all varieties of wheat, cotton, rice, peanuts, and corn.

The House last summer approved a bill restoring the old 90 per cent plan, but Ellender told newsmen Sunday night "I doubt

if it will pass."

Keans said John Schuessler died from a severe blow to the neck, and that he also was beaten violently about the head.

"The blows were so severe that they caused bleeding in the two coverings of the brain below the skull bone," Keans said.

The other two boys were choked to death, the doctor said. He believed Robert was strangled with a noose, possibly made of a tie, but he could not theorize what method of strangulation killed Anton.

All, he said, "must have put up a terrific battle."

The skin was torn off Anton's knuckles, the doctor said, and he and his brother both suffered blows to the left side of the head "as though they were being forced into something," Keans said. Anton also may have been kicked in the chest.

Robert was badly beaten on the head with a "blunt instrument," Keans said.

Keans said the tape which covered the eyes, nose and mouth of each victim, "apparently was applied after the boys were knocked out." The tape was not the direct cause of death, however, he said, but is proof that "an assailant of this type always overdoes the job."

Congressman James E. Van Zandt to Address Dinner Club Thursday

Congressman James E. Van Zandt of Pennsylvania, member of the Atomic Energy and Armed Services committee will be the guest speaker of the Southern Illinois Dinner club Thursday night at the Kurto Country club. The dinner meeting will begin promptly at 6:30.

Congressman Van Zandt, a veteran who saw a lot of action in two world wars, will discuss the atom from the angle of peace. He will discuss the view of the military and the potential to promote the standards of living in a world peacetime economy.

He will be one of the top speakers in the current series of Dinner club meetings and members are asked to make advance reservations with Rees Turner, club secretary.

Benson Says He Does Not Have Authority For Emergency Program

WASHINGTON (UP)—Agriculture Secretary Ezra T. Benson told a Republican congressman Sunday that he does not have authority to launch an emergency program of price controls on items farmers must buy.

Rep. Phil Weaver (R-Nebr.) asked Benson last week to put the emergency program into effect.

After receiving Benson's reply, Weaver said he will consult Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr. about the legal question. If necessary, Weaver said he will introduce legislation "to put a helpful farm program into effect."

WASHINGTON (UP)—Household-ers and merchants began sweeping up the debris today from an earthquake that shook the San Francisco Bay area for 100 miles around, causing one death and widespread but relatively minor damage.

The worst of the two-wave quake lasted about two minutes, but it registered on seismographs for an additional 15 minutes or so.

Seismologist Perry Byerly of the University of California said it measured 4.5 on the Richter Scale of 10, but seismographs in Southern California recorded it at 5.5.

The disastrous quake that destroyed San Francisco in 1906 measured 8.25 and the temblor that leveled Tehachapi in Southern California three years ago measured 7.5.

Causes Two Gas Main Explosions; Fire; One Dead

Two-Wave Quake Shakes Bay Area For 100 Miles

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Householders and merchants began sweeping up the debris today from an earthquake that shook the San Francisco Bay area for 100 miles around, causing one death and widespread but relatively minor damage.

The worst of the two-wave quake lasted about two minutes, but it registered on seismographs for an additional 15 minutes or so.

Seismologist Perry Byerly of the University of California said it measured 4.5 on the Richter Scale of 10, but seismographs in Southern California recorded it at 5.5.

The disastrous quake that destroyed San Francisco in 1906 measured 8.25 and the temblor that leveled Tehachapi in Southern California three years ago measured 7.5.

In Wrong Place

Byerly said Sunday night's quake was "not very big, but in the wrong place." He said it was apparently caused by a slip in the Hayward Fault along the eastern shore of San Francisco Bay.

Only last week, Byerly predicted that California was about due for a "big one" although he said the San Andreas Fault would be to blame if it takes place.

The quake apparently caused two gas main explosions in Oakland. One of them set off a fire in a house that took the life of Mrs. Ora Bell, 85. Mrs. Ruthene Aldinger, 49, jumped from a second floor window and two others escaped.

Telephone Lines Jammed

The fire, which caused $25,000 damage, was not reported for several minutes after the quake, apparently because telephone lines were jammed with calls.

The other explosion blew a room from a house. Fire broke out but was confined to a kitchen. A neighbor, Manuel Ortega, was injured by flying glass.

Most of the damage appeared to be centered along the eastern shore of the bay, with Walnut Creek, about 30 miles east of San Francisco, suffering the most. Hundreds of householders reported windows broken and dishes shaken to the floor.

At least every other store in Walnut Creek had its windows broken. The worst damage was caused by huge plate glass windows in banks and stores. Two persons suffered heart attacks, but they were not fatal. Power lines were down in the area.

Taking Care of Things

Editorial — By BRUCE BLOSSAT
The craftsman, the fellow who takes deep pride in the perfection
of his workmanship, has become a relative rarity in America. He is a casualty of the mass production era.

And vanishing with him has been respect for the appearance and condition of physical property. It isn't unfair to say that one of the distinguishing marks of our industrial civilization is the careless scrub-down on a new car, or TV set,
or phonograph record, or freshly
painted house wall, or whatever.

In a day when new products are deluging Americans in a mounting tide, owning something new sets
no one apart. What takes new genius is to keep something looking new for more than a few days
— or hours.

Most everything costs more and more to buy, but is treated less
and less as if it were worth it.

One of the agonizing ironies is that industry has never put more stress on finishing, polishing and packaging its products for the consumer. A great selling point is made of all this. But five minutes after a product has gone out the retailer's door, it might as well
be an old shoe.

Sometimes the manhandling and mauling begins even earlier. The phonograph record makers say that technically they are producing the finest records ever. But in the retail shops and elsewhere,
a high percentage of them are scuffed and scarred like old manhole covers.

Chromium and bright paint are
hallmarks of today's automobiles.
But put the new wagon in the hands of the service boys and watch what happens. Outfitted thoughtfully in scratchy belt buckles, projecting metal pencil clips
and other weapons, they lean against your car to see "what's wrong." Many a homesteaded mechanic's boot has done wonders
to antique the finish of your shiny
bumper.

To invite movers, repair and service men into your home is often to court near disaster. Unless you nursemaid them at every step,
your walls and floors and furniture
may be gouged with some permanent calling cards. Some movers bang furniture around like secondhand lumber.

But it's not just the tradesman
who is at fault. The ordinary citizen is just about as bad, when it's not his property that's involved.
Cars parked on the street seem to be public benches. The passenger in a public conveyance often thinks it's all right to use a nearby seat as a footrest. In fact, dirty footprints everywhere are an other mark of the age.

Blanket indictments are risky.
But many of us are getting pretty callous and indifferent about our care of physical things—whether ours or someone else's. It's time
we turned away from this crudity
and began showing real responsibility toward the material possessions we Americans profess to be so proud of.

One Hopeful Indication

We don't often get good news
from the FBI in these crime-packed postwar years. But recently we did. Major crimes in the United States declined in the first six months of 1955.

It was the first improvement of that sort since 1948. In the intervening years, the figures have always headed upward.

The crime rate overall dropped about 1.4 per cent in U. S. cities.
Robberies showed the biggest decline—15 per cent. Murders and nonnegligent manslaughter fell nearly 4 per cent.

The FBI doesn't want us to feel
too cheerful about these figures.
It pointed out that if present crime rates continue for the rest of the year, then 1955 will be the fourth year in a row in which more than two million major crimes have been committed.

So, we are not out of the woods.
But maybe we can hope a little that somebody is beginning to find
a path that will lead us out.

Some Diet

If a human family ate in proportion to a family of birds, the daily grocery list would include something like 50 loaves of bread, 25 pounds of hamburger, 30 doughnuts, 10 pounds of spinach, six heads of lettuce, and one gallon
of ice cream.

Arms and the Man

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: A Great Ambassador Dies: Carlos
Davila Suffered in Chile
Because He Liked Americans;
His Great Goal Was Peace In
The Americas.

WASHINGTON. — A great man
lay dying. He did not know it.
The world did not know it. And for a time, the world, unknowing,
did not seem to care. . . . The October sun filtered in through the blinds of the bedroom and fell on his bed. Children's voices came up from the street below. The play-by-play account of a football game droned on from a near-by radio. . . . The World, busy with its own joys, its own pain, paid
scant attention to the death struggle of a man who had helped make history in the Western Hemisphere, whose life for a generation had been inextricably interwoven with the ups and downs of peace and war in the Americas.

Carlos Davila's eyes still burned bright as I sat beside him. They seemed even brighter because the sockets were deep, his face drawn,
his body emaciated. He had been sick a long time. . . . He did not look like the dapper little ambassador who had solved a world-
famous social controversy by escorting Dolly Gann, sister of the vice president, to dinner ahead
of Alice Longworth, wife of the Speaker. . . . He was Chilean ambassador then. . . . That was a day when the world had little to worry about—no depression, no European wars, no encroaching communism in Asia, no foreign aid—
just the fact that the Hoover administration would not decide who should sit where at dinner until after Carlos Davila, following two little meetings of the full diplomatic corps, grasped the bull by the horns and Dolly Gann by the arm, and solved it for them.

HONEST EX-PRESIDENT

He always hated to have me recall that he had once been the arbitrator of a social crisis, and did not recall it to him on that October afternoon. We talked of other things—simple things—old friends
—poignant things. . . . how, when elected as president of Chile he had tried to find a job in the U. S. A.
. . . of Karl Bickel, who had helped him, and Joshua Powers, who also helped. . . . and Roy Howard
. . . Bickel was head of the United Press in those days and got Davila
a job writing a column for Latin American newspapers for about $50 a week. . . . Davila didn't mention it, but I knew he well remembered how most Latin-American presidents leave office only after protecting their financial future.
He did not. . . . He had given Chile 100 days of honest, vital reform—reform which still remains; had come to the United States to work,
scrimp, save the rest of his life.
I know because I sometimes advanced him the railroad fare between New York and Washington
for his years, for the first time since he left the president's palace in Santiago, he had security. A year ago he had become head of the Pan American Union. . . . and he was dying.

The old man was fighting for his breath now. And yet he wasn't
old. His face was drawn, pathetically drawn. But his eyes were full of determination. . . . on the wall were pictures of younger days when that determination had settled great crises. . . . One was Secretary of State Frank B.
Kellogg congratulating Davila on the final settlement of the Tacna-Arica dispute. Chile and Peru
had been on the verge of war.
Troops were mobilized, skirmishes occurred. Gens. John J. Pershing and William Lassiter, our most famed military men, both went to South America. Both failed to stop the fighting. . . . Then Davila stepped in. . . . a few common-sense ideas, arranged a cooling-
off period, and the two countries trading together. Gradually they became among the best friends in

the Americas.

DYNAMIC CRUSADER FOR PEACE

Outside, in the fading October
sun, the brilliant lince tile of the Pan American Union also seemed faded and discouraged. The union would be more faded when Davila died. . . . But the parrot in the palm tree in the patio seemed
just as cocky, just as unconcerned
as the children who played in the street outside. He had lived 100 years, had seen directors of the Pan American Union come and go, had watched diplomats gather to prevent a war in the Chaco, had been awakened only last winter
when Davila as director of the Pan American Union summoned
21 ambassadors to meet all night
to stop war between Nicaragua
and Costa Rica. . . . Davila had stopped that war. . . . By 4 a. m.
a plane was warming up at the National Airport to carry five ambassadors to Central America.
Never had there been such dynamic, drastic action for peace.
. . . afterward Davila asked me, asked other newsmen to give credit to other envoys. They deserved it.
. . . But we knew, they knew, that he was the man who deserved it most.

"There is so much to be done,"
the old man sighed, "and so little time to do it." The October
sun was sinking, his life was ebbing, and he did not know it. His great ambition was peace; to bring more unity between the United States and Latin Americans. He had worked at this so hard that in Chile he could not run for president again. Chileans considered him an adopted Gringo
— too good a friend of the United States. . . . Yet the State Department considered him too avid in his devotion to Pan America.

The old man was asleep now.
The football game was almost over. The October sun was faint and feeble as it filtered in through the latticed window. I remembered as I sat there now, on New Year's eve, only 10 months before,
I had driven in from Maryland to drink a toast with Davila just before midnight. "It will be a good year for both of us," he predicted. . . . It was not a good year for him. But it was a good year for Pan American peace. . . . Other memories came crowding back.
. . . How I had gone to the White House in 1940 to get a plane to take his wife, dying of cancer,
back to Chile, back to her native

land. And now her husband, dying from the same dread disease,
lay very quiet while the final football scores droned in through the window and children played outside in the street.

Large Crowd Present For Homecoming At First Baptist Church

A large crowd was present and a very enjoyable day was observed Sunday at the First Baptist church where homecoming was held. Rev. Howard Todd Taylor gave an inspiring message at the morning service. At the close of the morning service, congratulations were extended to Mr. and Mrs. Guy Karnes who were celebrating their golden wedding anniversary that day and also to Mr.
and Mrs. Charlie Hall who will observe their 50th anniversary
this week.

It was the 118th anniversary of the church, the present building
being the third structure to be erected on the grounds. It was also the third anniversary of the present pastor's work on this field.
The church presented him and his family with a 50 dollar bill in appreciation of their work.

At noon a bountiful meal was served in the church basement.
The meal included a beautiful anniversary cake with three tiers
and three lighted candles.

In the afternoon the Boys of Little Egypt Quartet sang and
Rev. W. W. Childers of Herrin gave the afternoon message. He commended the church for being a "banner church" as the Sunday school Association banner, attendance banner, efficiency banner and the W. M. S. banner were on display. The singing of the quartet and the message were greatly enjoyed by all present.

At the close of the afternoon
service recognition was given to the oldest members of the church.
The service was closed with the benediction and an old fashioned handshake with these oldest members, some being members of the church for more than 64 years.

Visitors were present from Harrington, Eldorado, East St. Louis, Collinsville, Zeigler and Herrin.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Weir accompanied by Mrs. Essie Musgraves attended church at the First Baptist church in Harrisburg Sunday night. There were no services at Raleigh Baptist.

The W. M. U. of the First Baptist church met at the church last Wednesday for the regular business session and Royal Service program. Miss Zella Greenfield is leader and Mrs. Lillie Cable, president. Topics were given by Zella Greenfield, Mrs. Essie Mus-
graves, Mrs. Edna Lassiter, Mrs.
Cora Naugle, Mrs. Stella Smith,
Mrs. Myra Weir, Mrs. Winnie Newcom, Mrs. Emma Hall and Mrs. Dessie McAllany.

Thursday evening prayer services were well attended at the Raleigh Methodist church. The pastor, Rev. Roy Hudson, gave an interesting talk taken from the 11th chapter of the book of Hebrews. Special prayers were offered for the sick. At the close of the meeting Mrs. McClarren and Mrs. Gordon gave a special number in song honoring the birthdays of Rev. Hudson, Mrs. Lena Irwin and Mrs. Utha Gaddis. All were then invited to the church basement
where a delicious supper had been prepared. Ruth Upchurch baked cucumbers with the inscription
"Happy Birthday to Our President Ike" and to Utha, Lena and Roy.

ed the home of Mr. and Mrs.
Fred Tanner of Eldorado Sunday

Population Growth To Bring Problems

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. —
Businessmen should get ready to meet a myriad of problems caused by a population "explosion" in the 1960's, according to a Los Angeles, Calif., official.
J. Howard Egerton, president of the United States Savings and Loan League, said businessmen
should not "wait for these problems to burst upon us before we make provision for their solution."

"I hope that no businessman is so blinded by the bright light of his prosperity that he will overlook the staggering social, political and economic problems that will evolve from the extraordinary increases in population during the 1960's," Egerton told a Michigan
Savings and Loan League meeting.

Egerton said the population
rise will intensify problems involving schools, transportation
and housing and make them "increasingly prominent in the arena
of political controversy."

Heraldry now is known as the "science of armorial bearings."

Estimate Corn Borer Loss at 60 Million Bushels

CHAMPAIGN (AP) — Illinois
farmers may lose as much as 60 million bushels of the 1955 corn crop from corn borer damage, preliminary data indicated today.

Dr. George C. Decker, Illinois
Natural History Survey entomologist, made the estimate in summarizing data from the annual corn borer survey to make the 60 million bushel loss estimate.

"Corn borer populations have risen steadily since the low point
was reached in 1951," Decker said.

Survey entomologists predicted a record year for corn borer damage
in the early spring. The last particularly bad borer year was 1949.

"When corn borer populations
dropped to relatively low levels in 1950, 1951 and 1952, farmers generally lost interest in corn borer
control," Decker added.

Heavy wind and rain during the last month has hit borer-stricken corn hard. Decker said many fields contain more than 50 per cent broken stalks where ears are rotting on the ground.

Failure of farmers to use control measures, combined with bad
weather, added up to the heavy losses, he said.

Baking was regarded as a fine
art in ancient Rome and bakers enjoyed high prestige and special privileges.

The bridegroom's mother was seated in a slate gray taffeta with black and white accessories and flowers of white roses.

Following the ceremony the reception took place at the church. The couple left for a honeymoon trip to New Orleans. They are now at home at 6229 Eichelberger, St. Louis, Mo.

Farm Income Off Four Per Cent In Nine Months

WASHINGTON — Farm income dropped 4 per cent during the first nine months of this year, but farm costs failed to follow suit.

The Agriculture Department Sunday estimated farmer's cash income receipts in the first nine months of 1955 at $19,700,000,000. These cash receipts came from a total volume of farm products that was about the same as last year.

The department said prices paid by farmers, including interest, taxes, and wage rates, averaged about the same as last year.

Receipts from livestock and livestock products totaled $11,700,000,000 down 5 per cent from the comparable 1954 period. This was attributed largely to a 29 per cent decline in average prices of hogs.

Receipts from dairy products were about the same as last year, but poultry and eggs were slightly higher.

Crop receipts were $8,000,000,000 for the January-September period, down 3 per cent from a year ago. Declines in wheat and cotton were only partly offset by increases for soybeans, tobacco, and vegetables.

His wife, Clara, charged with illegal sale of liquor following the raid by Sheriff William T. Barrett and deputies, also is out on bond.

Murder in Haiti

by John W. Vandercreek

THE STORY: Viggo Sand, the man of mystery, is bound on a treasure seeking cruise which has aroused curiosity of British Intelligence. Bertram Lynch, an operative, poses as a private detective acting as Sand's bodyguard. With him is Robert Deane, American criminologist. They try to track Sand's office but are surprised by Heitzig, the yacht's watchman. Deane attends to Heitzig with a blackjack.

IX

Heitzig was badly hurt. Clotted blood marked a break in the skin just above the right temple. It had run down his cheek and dried. That whole side of his forehead was beginning to discolor. Heitzig's eyes were partly open but he had not recovered consciousness. He was breathing jerkily.

If I hadn't entirely lost my memory, I had struck the watchman on the back of the head. That injured right temple had been turned away from me. Had he struck something in falling? There was nothing on the floor, no piece of furniture within two yards of him. Dr. Sven Lund's small hands, which looked as if they had been washed a million times, were gently fingering an ugly-looking soft spot just above Heitzig's temple.

"A hard blow," Dr. Lund said softly. "If the man's skull were not so thick I would say his condition might be serious. As it is, I anticipate no great danger."

"Will you trepan, Doctor?" Lynch asked.

Lund regarded him with the slight distaste medical men always display at professional talk by laymen. "If it should prove necessary."

Dr. Lund lowered Heitzig's head and shoulders quickly to the carpet and stood up. For a Norwegian — for, at any rate, what I imagined to be the Norwegian type — Dr. Lund was well below the average in both height and girth, a slight, pale man.

When he had finished, Lynch, who had remained on his knees peering at the injured man, spoke again.

"Would you agree, Dr. Lund, from your observation that this man was struck with something in the nature of a small hammer? A metallic object of some sort with a clearly defined point of impact of perhaps a centimeter and a half in diameter?"

Dr. Lund smiled. "You are very observant, Mr. Lynch. It is possible, of course. Perhaps when I have made a more thorough examination I may be able to confirm your opinion."

I looked at the safe. The mahogany board with the brass plaque still swung wide as Lynch had left it. But the safe itself was not at all as Lynch had left it. Lynch had merely tapped and scratched at it. Someone else — unless, as I did for a moment think — Lynch had come back for another try after I had gone to my room — had made a much more exhaustive attempt. And had also failed.

When Heitzig had been carried off under Dr. Lund's supervision on a short legged canvas stretcher, Lynch closed the door after them. We then both set about examining the study.

By some diligent crawling, considerably impeded by floppy bedroom slippers and our hastily donned bathrobes, we found one stain of what must be Heitzig's blood.

The brass plaque, the mahogany board and the painted safe door showed no fresh fingerprints whatever.

"You didn't, I suppose, go back and have another crack at Viggo's safe?"

"And you didn't," Lynch retorted. "Go back and have another crack at Heitzig?"

"Nonsense."

Lynch turned upon me an impersonal but baleful stare. "Someone aboard this yacht, Robert, is making use of me!"

"The word I had in mind was 'monkey'."

Lynch nodded. "I accept it. Come with me. We'll wake the passengers. All of them. It may at least tell us who needs waking. We'll tell 'em to assemble in the lounge. Something may come of it."

My stateroom was first. Next came that of Dr. Lund. The Norwegian, unexpectedly, was not with his patient but at home. He was fully dressed, even to a dull-looking little brown bow tie, and was sitting in the armchair.

"Doctor," said Lynch sharply, "if you will be so good. Please come to the lounge in 10 minutes. I am sure you will understand."

Dr. Lund smiled politely and inclined his head. "Certainly."

The next cabin was Lily Wyndham's. Cabin D.

I raised my hand to knock but Lynch forestalled me. Again he reached for the knob and again found that Lily, too, had trustfully left her door unlocked.

Lily was asleep. She was wearing the filmiest and costliest of pale blue nightgowns. Nylon, I believe. She was sleeping on her back, her pretty, blondest of blond heads nestled in a pillow. She had thrown all the covers on the floor. It was a pleasure.

Lily was one of those rare people who when she woke, with no jarring transition, was wide awake. To discover us staring at her from the door disconcerted her not at all.

"What," inquired Lily amiably, "is this, a raid? Or are you just looking? Having fun?"

"Yes," I summoned what dignity I could. "But that isn't the purpose of this visit."

Lily nodded on her pillow.

"Not at all! What we came to say was there had been another, well, another incident."

Lily propped herself happily on her elbows. "More crime?"

UN Marks Its 10th Anniversary

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. —AP— The United Nations marked its tenth anniversary today in world-wide celebrations that ranged from "fires of joy" in Togoland to solemn speeches in Manhattan. The General Assembly proclaimed Oct. 24 "United Nations Day" in 1947 to mark the anniversary of the signing of the charter in San Francisco. The main ceremonies were in New York, site of the U. N. headquarters.

U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld, Mayor Robert F. Wagner and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt were meeting at New York City Hall for ceremonies in which Mrs. Roosevelt will present $500 in awards to winners in an anniversary essay contest.

Hammarskjöld and Jose Maza of Chile, president of the General Assembly, address a concert tonight to be presented in the assembly chamber for officials and delegations and their guests.

CADILLAC for 1956

Top to bottom—Eldorado Seville, Sedan de Ville, Sixty Special

Presenting the Most Inspiring Motor Cars the World Has Ever Seen!

You are looking at three of the most magnificent and inspiring creations ever to issue from the drawing boards of Cadillac's designers and engineers.

These spectacular new Cadillacs—in company with the other Cadillac models for 1956—introduce a standard of excellence that will find no counterpart on the world's highways.

Where, for instance, could you find anything to match them for beauty and elegance? Their long, low, sweeping lines . . . their jewel-like grille and rear-fender designs . . . their brilliant new color combinations . . . their sparkling highlights of chrome and gold . . . all combine to create a beauty that is truly unique.

Where could you find anything to equal them in luxury? Their new interiors offer fabrics and leathers of rare richness and quality . . . together with features of comfort and convenience that will delight even the most experienced Cadillac owner. And where could you find anything to rival them in performance?

There's a completely redesigned Cadillac engine developing 285 and 305 horsepower . . . an entirely new, controlled-coupling Hydra-Matic Drive . . . advanced Cadillac Power Steering . . . and improved Cadillac Power Braking.

This extraordinary new beauty . . . and this brilliant new luxury . . . and this dynamic new performance . . . have been interpreted in four separate series and in nine individual body styles.

We sincerely urge you to stop in for a personal inspection and demonstration at your earliest convenience.

We know you will agree that these are the most inspiring Cadillacs of all time. And that, of course, means that they are the most inspiring motor cars the world has ever seen!

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UP) — E. Bud Arvey, 38-year-old stock broker son of long-time Chicago Democratic boss Jake Arvey, slashed his wrist in the apartment of an attractive divorcee because she refused to marry him, police disclosed today.

Officers said they found Arvey in a "bloody and drunken" condition Sunday morning on the bathroom floor of Mrs. Jane Aronson, 33, after she reported he forced his way into her apartment about 3 a. m.

She is the divorced wife of a Chicago doctor.

Patrolman Arthur Godber took Arvey to Mt. Sinai Hospital where four stitches were taken in his left wrist.

After being treated and released, Arvey was booked for breach of the peace by attempted suicide, breaking and entering, and resisting arrest. Godber said he and another officer had to subdue Arvey and place him in handcuffs to take him to a hospital.

Arvey was released in custody of Miami Beach Attorney Ben Cohen.

Big 3 Agree To Strategy for Geneva Talks

Saar, Middle East Crises Shadow To Allied Unity

government press hailed a week-end visit to Rome by Dulles as insuring a more important position for Italy in the Western alliance. Dulles was reported to have promised to consult Italy on major issues, continue the fight for Italian admission to the United Nations, but to have declined to raise Italy and Germany to the same status as Britain and France in western councils.

PARIS (UP) — The Big Three foreign ministers, under the shadow of crisis in the Saar and the Middle East, reached "complete agreement" today on much of their strategy for the forthcoming Geneva talks with Russia.

French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay announced the "complete agreement" on proposals for German unity and European security when he emerged from a meeting with U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and British Foreign Secretary Harold MacMillan.

This pronouncement of renewed Western unity came in the light of these related diplomatic developments:

1. In a referendum Sunday, the Saarlanders rejected a proposed statute to "Europeanize" their tiny state which lies between France and Germany.
2. The result, a major defeat for French foreign policy, threatened to revive Franco-German animosity and renew old hatreds.
3. The government of Saar Premier Johannes Hoffmann resigned in the face of the defeat of the referendum which it had supported.
4. West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and French Premier Edgar Faure vowed in an exchange of telegrams to save the friendship between their two countries despite any temporary setback.
5. Israeli Premier and Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett arrived in Paris to confer with the foreign ministers and with his key ambassadors from Washington, Moscow, London, Paris and Rome about mounting Middle East tension.

Barons Dump All-Stars, 8-4

The Old Hickory Barons downed the Harrisburg All-Stars by an 8 to 4 count in a game played at the new park near Dorris Heights Sunday.

Despite getting only two hits during the game, the Barons scored eight times as they took advantage of eight bases on balls and two hit batsmen plus help from three of the five errors that the All-Stars made.

Don Stout was the victim of wildness as he walked eight and hit one while allowing one hit in his two and two-thirds innings tenure on the mound. Bill McNew, who relieved Stout, retired 17 men in a row before hitting a batsman with one out in the ninth. This was followed by the other hit that the Barons collected plus two errors which netted them their final two runs. All told, the Barons did not tally an earned run while the All-Stars picked up three of their four tallies via the earned run method on the nine hits that they garnered.

Harold Guiley paced the All-Star attack with three singles with Bill McNew and Don Karnes connecting safely twice each. Fred Williams and Merle Dailey picked up the other safeties. Dailey also turned in the defensive play of the afternoon when he grabbed a pop foul off the barrier along the first base line in the eighth inning.

Dick Romonosky caught all the way for the All-Stars. Frank Woods on the hill and Dan Black behind the plate formed the winners' battery all the way.

Financially, the game was a success as a nice crowd was on hand to witness the game. The management wishes to thank all those who aided in any way in making it a success and proceeds that were left over will be used to further improve the park.

Clark Griffith, Owner of Nats, Is Near Death

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Clark Griffith, 85-year-old president of the Washington Senators and co-founder of the American League, was reported near death today.

Aides at Georgetown Hospital said Griffith, baseball's oldest active executive, was in "very low" condition. They said the chances of his recovery from a stomach hemorrhage were "remote."

Griffith, baseball's "good will ambassador" and one of the craftiest traders in the business, was in the hospital for three days before he suffered the stomach hemorrhage Saturday night. He had been convalescing from an attack of neuritis when he was stricken.

Dr. George Resta, his physician, told reporters late Sunday night that Griffith's chances of recovery were "just fair." Hospital attaches were more pessimistic.

The baseball career of the "old fox" covered 69 years as a player, manager and owner. He was the personal friend of every president since 1912 when he started the custom of having the chief executive throw out the ceremonial "first ball" of the season.

Established Mound Record
Griffith broke into professional baseball at Bloomington, Ill., at the age of 17 and went on to establish a pitching record that ranks him among the top 12 hurlers of all time.

In 17 full seasons of major league pitching, starting in 1891, he won 237 games and lost 149. He hit his peak in 1895 when he introduced the "screwball" to pitching.

Griffith was pitching for the old Chicago Nationals when a group of insurgents left to form the American League. He was one of the leaders and joined the New York Highlanders—now the Yankees—as manager.

In 1921, he purchased the Washington club of the American League—known as the Nationals. As president of the Nats, he displayed the same craftiness that had distinguished him as a pitcher.

Looking AT Sports

By BILL MELTON

Dick Lehr, who copped the "you pick 'em" championship a week ago with ten correct selections in as many tries, is co-champ of the latest "you pick 'em" contest, for games played Friday, Oct. 21.

Lehr, coach at Bridgeport and formerly at Carrier Mills, and James Braddock, Eldorado salesman who lives on South State street in our neighboring city, each picked eight winners. They really didn't pick any losers, as two of the ten games listed in the contest ended in a deadlock, each by a 14-14 score.

Braddock and Lehr not only tied in the number of correct selections, but on the game of the week each posted a score of Herrin 20, Harrisburg 13. That's as close as two selections can be.

On the games that ended in tied scores (Benton 14, Cairo 14; Carmi 14, Mt. Carmel 14) Braddock picked Cairo and Mt. Carmel. Lehr picked Benton and Carmi.

One contestant, Cecil Harris of 817 South McKinley, picked "em the hard way. He listed a score for each game. Harris was really close on the Eldorado-West Frankfort game. He picked Eldorado to win 20-6. He was off just a point on the WF score.

Our two lady entrants stayed with us—Mrs. Altire of Harrisburg and Nola Lehr of Bridgeport again sent us their picks.

Incidentally, only three entry can league. He was one of the leaders and joined the New York Highlanders—now the Yankees—as manager.

In 1921, he purchased the Washington club of the American League—known as the Nationals. As president of the Nats, he displayed the same craftiness that had distinguished him as a pitcher.

blanks received last week picked Herrin to win. The two winners plus one Harrisburg resident saw the upset coming that knocked the Bull Dogs out of the unbeaten class.

Do you realize that our "you pick 'em" for football has only three more weeks to go, including this one? There are only three more complete week ends of high school football—Oct. 28, Nov. 4 and Nov. 11. Then comes basketball. If you want to try your luck at picking grid winners you had better get started. Time's a-wastin'!

The "you pick 'em" for this week, games to be played Oct. 28, Wood River at Harrisburg, Fairfield at Carmi, Mt. Vernon at Benton, Eldorado at Cairo, Anna at Sparta, McLeansboro at Metropolis, Centralia at Marion, Chester at Murphysboro, Pinckneyville at Zeigler, Carbondale at Johnston City (game of the week)

YPSILANTI, Mich. — Southern Illinois university's sensational last minute touchdown drive fell eight yards short here Saturday afternoon as the Salukis dropped a narrow, 7-2 decision to Michigan State Normal.

SIU outclassed the Hurons—last year's co-champions—on the ground, in the air, and in punting, weakened just enough in the third quarter for Michigan Normal to make the game's only touchdown. Halfback Virgil Windom scored on a four-yard end sweep to clinch a 49-yard drive. Jerry Wedge kicked the extra point.

Southern fullback Hank Warfield scored in the second quarter, only to have the play called back for a 15-yard holding penalty against the Salukis.

SIU's two points came in the last six minutes of play as Marion Rushing, Pinckneyville, and Roger Buyan, Dowell, trapped Normal's halfback, Douglas Wilkins, in his end zone after he had fumbled the ball on an attempted punt.

The Salukis made their final drive in the last two minutes of play, moving from their own 47 to the Normal 8-yard line on running plays and a 34-yard pass ruled complete for pass interference. The horn sounded before Southern could get in another play.

Line play highlighted the contest with both teams getting terrific support from their forward walls. For Southern, Ed Hayes, 230-pound tackle from San Francisco, Calif., displayed great offensive and defensive power in one of his best games. Southern's line was so tough that Normal's best runner—Windom—netted only 18 yards in 16 carries.

Both teams had so much trouble moving on the ground that a 19-yard gain was the longest rushing play of the game. Southern's top ground-gainer was Hank Warfield with 60 yards in 19 carries.

SIU end Wayne Williams, Du Quoin, moved up among the top punters of the nation's small colleges as he averaged (from scrimmage) 44 yards for his five punts to bring his season average to 39.4 for 22 punts.

SIU outrushed Normal, 124-87, even out in passing, 97-41, and had a combined rushing-passing gain of 231 yards compared to Normal's 128. Southern led in first downs, 10-5. Southern was hurt by four lost fumbles and three pass interceptions.

The win gave Normal sole possession of first place in the I. I. A. C. and pushed the Salukis to third, a half game behind Central Michigan. SIU hopes to get back into the race in a loop contest against Western at Macomb Saturday, Oct. 29.

Michigan Settles for 14-13 Win Over Minnesota; Tough Schedule Lies Ahead
By United Press
Michigan, its hold on the No. 1 national ranking among college football teams shaken by a narrow-squeak victory over Minnesota, found today that a schedule fraught with peril lies just ahead—in contrast to the rosy prospects facing Maryland and Oklahoma.

The Wolverines were glad to settle for a 14-13 decision over Minnesota, thanks to an extra-point conversion by Jimmy Van Pelt.

But now they must face Iowa's revenge-bent Hawkeyes next Saturday, a team knocked out of the Big Ten running by Michigan last year and anxious to pay that back with interest. If the Wolverines survive this threat, they still must hurdle Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio State to achieve an unbeaten season.

Not so for Maryland, the nation's No. 2 team, or for third-ranked Oklahoma.

Not only did both of these mighty eleventh win impressively on Saturday—Maryland showing no mercy in a 34-13 victory over Syracuse and Oklahoma showing dazzling power in coming from behind to crush Colorado, 56-21—but their remaining schedules hold no terrors to compare with Michigan's. Both teams now are favored to go the rest of the way unbeaten.

Duke Record Marred
The only team among the nation's "top ten" to lose this week-end was seventh-ranked Duke. The Blue Devils were jolted into seven fumbles as they bowed to Pittsburgh, 26-7. Pitt's revenge for that famous 1938 defeat pinned on a Pitt powerhouse by a Duke team led by Eric Tipton.

Among the other major upset victims of the weekend were Yale, whipped 7-0 by Colgate on Frank Nardulli's fourth-period touchdown; Wisconsin, beaten, 26-16, by Ohio State; and Boston College, a 13-point favorite forced to settle for a 13-13 tie against Marquette on Friday night.

Yale, Colorado, Duke, Boston College, and San Jose State which lost to College of the Pacific, 14-7, were knocked from the list of major unbeaten teams. Left are only six teams—Maryland, Oklahoma, Michigan, West Virginia, Holy Cross, and Navy.

Navy must risk that record this week against Notre Dame, a team that rebounded from its loss to Michigan State to beat Purdue impressively, 22-7.

Among other leading individual stars this weekend were:

In Duke's Backfield
John Paluck, Pitt's 220-pound end who played in Duke's backfield all day to disrupt Blue Devil plays and also set up a touchdown with a brilliant pass catch; Roy Fendren of Texas, who gained 145 yards in 11 carries, including a 50-yard touchdown sweep, to lead a 32-14 win over Rice; Don McIlhenny of SMU, who scored four touchdowns in a 33-14 victory over Kansas; Bill Beagle of Dartmouth, the nation's leading passer, who tossed one TD pass and ran for another score in 14-0 win over Harvard; Jack Pardee of Texas A&M, who scored two touchdowns and ground out 81 yards rushing in 19-7 win over Baylor; Earl Morrall of Michigan State, who passed to two touchdowns in 21-7 win over Illinois; soph Gene Newton of Tulane, who ran 49 yards for one touchdown and eight for another in 14-0 win over Georgia; Bobby Moss of West Virginia, who ran to two touchdowns in 21-7 victory over Penn State; Jack Stephens of Holy Cross, who passed for one TD and ran for another in 20-12 win over Boston University; Bill Tarr, who carried the ball 27 times with an average gain of 4.3 yards to lead underdog Stanford to a 7-7 tie of Washington; and Jon Arnett of Southern California, who ran to three touchdowns in a 33-6 victory over California.

One out of every seven persons in the United States is dependent in some way upon the automotive industry for his livelihood.

SEDAN DE VILLE: Cadillac's Sedan de Ville, a four-door hardtop presented for the first time for 1956, preserves the graceful Florentine window styling of two-door hardtops yet provides the roominess and four-door convenience of sedan models. Rear seat head and leg room in the Sedan de Ville is greater than in two-door hardtop models. The car features a new power train consisting of a new 285 horsepower engine and a "controlled coupling" Hydra-Matic transmission which is completely new in principle and mechanical parts. The new Cadillac for 1956 will be on display Tuesday at the Humm Motor Co., local dealer.

New 1956 Cadillac to Be on Display Tuesday at Humm Motor Company

The new 1956 Cadillac will be on display Tuesday at the Humm Motor company, local dealer. The line of 1956 automobiles presents a completely restyled appearance, features a list of important engineering advancements and has been expanded to include two new body styles.

A new, more powerful, 285 horsepower engine and a 305 horsepower Eldorado engine coupled with a vastly improved transmission system are typical of the many engineering developments.

Presented for the first time are the Sedan de Ville, a four-door hardtop; and the Eldorado Seville, a limited production model supplied menting Cadillac's dramatic Eldorado convertible, the Biarritz.

With the addition of the two new models Cadillac now offers a total of ten body styles in three series.

In combining a newly designed more powerful engine with a new "controlled coupling" Hydra-Matic transmission Cadillac engineers have attained a power train unequalled in performance and efficiency in all speed ranges.

The new 1956 V-type overhead valve engine is rated at 285 horsepower, has a 9.75:1 compression ratio, a four inch bore and a displacement of 305 cubic inches.

While improving Cadillac's traditionally high straightaway performance, the increased horsepower, high displacement power plant provides a major torque increase in city speed ranges where safety often depends on split-second acceleration. To the Cadillac owner this means instantaneous response between accelerator action and the actual release of driving power which turns the rear wheels.

Features of the new freer breathing engine include a new block and cylinder heads, new distributor, new spark plugs, new hydraulic valve lifters, a modified starting motor, a new fan, a new sealed voltage regulator, an improved fuel pump, a larger carburetor, a new intake manifold and larger main bearing journals.

As in 1955, the Cadillac engine is modified for the Eldorado models. The Eldorado engine which produces 305 horsepower uses dual four-barrel carburetors, a special intake manifold, modified air cleaners and new throttle controls.

To take full advantage of the new engine's large displacement and increased power a new transmission, the "controlled coupling" Hydra-Matic, has been developed and is standard in all 1956 models.

New in principle, the unit transmits the engine's increased power with unequalled ease, smoothness and efficiency. Design features of the new transmission also include increased durability, quieter operation and positive acceleration control.

A new power brake system is standard on all 1956 models.

Rescue Two Boys Trapped 15 Hours In Laundry Machine

CHICAGO (AP)—Two 9-year-old boys were trapped for 15 hours in an old commercial laundry machine before they were rescued by police and firemen Sunday.

An 8-year-old playmate had locked the boys in the machine. He became frightened and went home without telling his parents what had happened.

The trapped boys, James Hardcastle Jr. and Francis Houk were imprisoned in one of 50 machines awaiting renovation in the yard of the Chicago New and Used Laundry Equipment Co.

They were on their way to a movie Saturday when they passed the yard, known as "ghost town," and crawled inside the machine, 6 feet high and 12 feet long.

Their playmate, Billy Stephens, 3, shut the door, and a bar fell into place and trapped them.

Later, the worried parents started a search and notified police. When Mrs. Houk stopped at the Stephens home to inquire about the boys, Billy at first denied knowing where they were. He finally admitted they were in the machine.

Hall Accuses Stevenson of Price 'Flip Flop'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall has accused Adlai E. Stevenson of bowing to pressure from Democratic Party bosses by doing a "flip-flop" on the farm price support issue.

Hall in a statement Sunday blasted Stevenson and New York Gov. Averell Harriman for endorsing the rigid 90 per cent price props.

Both Stevenson and Harriman endorsed the rigid supports in statements over the weekend to a Democratic farm conference in Des Moines, Iowa. They called for a federal hog-buying program and 90 per cent of parity price supports.

Hall said that on Oct. 7 in a speech at Green Bay, Wis., Stevenson said that a 90 per cent program "was not the answer to the farm problem." But on Friday, he said, Stevenson sent a statement to the 12-state meeting endorsing 90 per cent supports.

Stevenson, when contacted at his farm in suburban Chicago, declined comment on Hall's statement. But an aide, Harry Ashmore, said "I'm not surprised that Mr. Hall is panic-stricken."

On another political front, Gov. Goodwin Knight of California said Sunday the GOP has "a score or more" of men who could win the presidency next year but he is for President Eisenhower "first, last and always."

The Republican governor said that if Mr. Eisenhower decides not to run he the President should pick the candidate he wants if he thinks such a course is wise.

Knight declined to discuss the presidential qualifications of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, a long-time political foe in California politics. He denied that he is "fighting with the vice president or he with me."

Two Die of Fumes While Cleaning Well

LONDON MILLS, Ill. (AP)—Two men were killed Sunday, apparently from carbon monoxide fumes, as they were cleaning a well on the Ralph Keener farm near here.

An Abington fire department rescue squad which went to the scene identified the two as John Reed, 25, Avon, Will Childs, 67, also of Avon.

Investigators said the men were using a gasoline motor to power a hoist, when Childs, working in the well, did not respond to Reed's calls, and Reed went into the well to see what was wrong.

Both men were apparently overcome with the fumes from the gasoline motor.

Scientists say there are more than 100,000 uses for cotton, which is produced on six continents.
